UNIVERSITÄT KOBLENZ-LANDAU
AT A GLANCE
THE UNIVERSITY INTRODUCES ITSELF
The University of Koblenz-Landau is a young middle-sized university. It was transformed from a teacher training college in 1990.

Its research and teaching are oriented on the closely linked interdisciplinary profile areas:

“Learning”, “Society” and “Environment”
Learning:
The University takes a leading role in the Educational Sciences and Teacher Training within the state of Rhineland-Palatinate.

It is the only university within this federal state that offers Teacher-Training Degrees for all school types. This core competence gives distinction to the profile.
PROFILE

Society:
This profile area is formed by the humanities, cultural and social sciences, in which in particular such areas as language art, culture, politics and economics are analyzed – from the psychological point of view as human science as well as through informatics, which develops wide range of IT-based services for people, optimizes them and tests their suitability for daily use.

Environment:
Three scientific approaches characterize this profile area. The environmental sciences approach refers to the natural describable environment, the informatics deals with the technical and digital environment and humanities and social sciences grasp environment as a cultural and social setting.
